

Small Newspapers Rally to Defense of AP in Its Suit

Declare Victory for Government Would be "Tragic"

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 30—(AP)—Disclaiming interest in the "controversy between two powerful Chicago morning newspapers", representatives of 1,000 smaller newspapers today joined the defense against the government's suit which charged The Associated Press with monopoly.

Edward E. Lindsay, editor of the Decatur Herald and Review, announced the formation of a committee of Associated Press members from smaller cities and, as chairman, issued a statement, declaring:

"We believe there are many who do not agree with certain policies of the Chicago Tribune. Nevertheless, all of us are alarmed over the possibility that the government's effort to obtain a forced Associated Press membership for the Tribune's morning competitor, the Chicago Sun, may result in the destruction of The Associated Press."

In its suit, now pending in federal court, the government claimed that the action of The Associated Press membership in declining to grant a membership to the Chicago Sun, had shown discriminatory monopolistic operations. The Tribune, which opposed membership for the Sun, is owned by Colonel Robert R. McCormick. The Sun is owned by Marshall Field. Colonel McCormick filed a separate answer to the suit.

Those who joined with Lindsay in forming the committee in the interest of the smaller papers were:

Members of Committee
James Chappell, Birmingham (Ala.) News and Age-Herald; David Howe, Burlington (Vt.) Free Press; Linwood I. Noyes, Ironwood, (Mich.) Globe; J. N. Heiskell, Little Rock (Ark.) Gazette; C. H. Heintzelman, Coatesville, (Pa.) Record; Fred Schilpin, St. Cloud (Minn.) Times and Journal Press; Tom Keene Elkhart, (Ind.) Truth; A. L. Miller, Battle Creek, (Mich.) Enquirer and News; Egbert Corson, Lockport, (N. Y.) Union-Sun and Journal; and Charles A. Guy, Lubbock, (Texas) Daily Journal.

Employment of Robert T. Neill of San Angelo, Texas, as attorney for the smaller papers "to emphasize the threat to small newspapers in this suit and to collaborate with counsel for AP in the defense", was announced by Lindsay who, in the interest of the whole committee, invited all members "who feel as we do" to join the movement.

Lindsay comes from a pioneer newspaper family. His grandfather founded the first six-day labor newspaper in the United States in 1885. Lindsay has been identified with the editorial and business departments of the Decatur dailies since 1924. The circulation of the Herald is 24,000 and the Review is 28,000. Decatur is a city of 60,000, one hundred and eighty miles southwest of Chicago.

His organization also owns the Urbana (Ill.) Evening Courier with 9,000 circulation and the East St. Louis (Ill.) Journal with a circulation of 15,000. The Journal is not an Associated Press member but has a competing news service.

"Many newspapers", said the committee's statement, "are now and for many years have operated successfully by the use of one or both of (the two competing) services and without being members in The Associated Press."

Cites Vital Issue
"Whatever the merits of the Chicago controversy may be", the committee's statement continued, "the vital issue to the rank and file of AP members is the preservation of an unbiased, factual news report that is the foundation of a free press in the United States, as this phrase is understood by the man in the street."

"We are standing at a fork in the road. The way we take will determine whether this nation can continue to have 2,000 lusty and independent daily newspapers or will, like most of the countries of the world, be forced to rely upon the reports of large regional newspapers operating under the supervision of the national government."

The government, in its suit, contends that Associated Press news should be available to any and all newspapers without restrictions as to membership and other qualifications.

The Associated Press, a non-profit, cooperative news gathering organization, is owned and operated by the member newspapers. Newspapers are admitted to membership by majority vote. Its news report is characterized by the government itself as "synonymous with the highest standards of accurate, non-partisan, and comprehensive news reporting."

"The membership includes many newspapers in large cities", said today's statement of the committee, "but its very essence stems from the more than 1,000 newspapers in the smaller communities across the country."

On Terms They Can Pay
"The Associated Press is devoted to the principle that all of its material, gathered through its cooperative facilities, be made available to all member newspapers, large and small, on terms they can afford to pay."

"If there were no Associated Press, or if Associated Press material could not be exclusively used by small newspapers in their communities of publication, the small newspapers would be faced with two alternatives:

"They might be forced out of business because of a drying up of their basic news service that would result from taking away the present incentive of cooperative member papers to furnish news to their association."

"Or, the price of their news service might become so high that strong and independent smaller newspapers would be forced to shrink into purely local sheets that would supplement the large regional newspapers financially able to send their staffs to distant parts of the world in search of exclusive material."

"There are unique and priceless qualities in the cooperative character of The Associated Press that not only operate to keep the cost of adequate basic news coverage within the reach of the small newspaper, but that are reflected in the news report itself."

"The very nature of The Associated Press organization guarantees objective reporting, unbiased and uncolored report of each of the events about which it tells."

Represent All Opinions
"The member newspapers, cooperating together through The Associated Press, represent all shades of political, economic and religious opinion. x x x

"A news agency report of world and national news is vital to small newspapers because they can not afford to send their own reporters to distant points where the most interesting or most important news events might take place."

"Small newspapers do not and cannot send their staffs to Washington to sit in on presidential deliberations of congress, nor the deliberations of congress, nor for that matter describe the fascinating details of a world series

"Tigress" Goes to Death Fearlessly in Louisiana Saturday

Slayer Balks at Having Her Dark Hair Shaved Off for Execution

Lake Charles, La., Nov. 30—(AP)—Mrs. Annie (Toni Jo, the Tigress) Henry, 26 years old, was put to death in the electric chair Saturday for the murder of Joseph P. Calloway, a Houston, Tex., salesman in a bleak rice field.

The slender brunette, who shot baseball game.

"The unique and priceless qualities inherent in the character of the AP organization are threatened with destruction if the theory of the anti-trust division of the department of justice should be sustained in the course of its attempt to get a forced AP membership for the Chicago Sun. The loss to the smaller newspapers over the country—and subsequently to newspaper readers as a whole—would be tragic."

Calloway while he knelt nude and praying for his life, died nervous and afraid. She was led from her cell to the portable electric chair at 12:10 p. m. The current was turned on two minutes later, and she was pronounced dead in a minute.

She smiled wanly as, clutching a crucifix, she descended the stairs from her neat cell to the execution chamber. Father Wayne Richard, who had administered the last communion, accompanied her. Tears welled in her eyes when a mask was fitted over her head as she was seated in the chair.

Head Covered With Shawl
She wore a black dress, black pumps, and was barelegged. Her head was covered with a shawl which hid the marks left by jailers when they clipped her tresses in preparation for the execution. She had sobbed when jailers entered her cell to shave her head—the customary preparation—and they clipped it instead.

Deputy Sheriff Kenny Reid read the death warrant to her and asked whether she had a statement.

"I believe not," she replied.

"Good-by, Toni Jo," the executioner said as he turned on the current. Toni Jo murmured an inaudible acknowledgment.

Father Richard had remained with her in the cell during the forenoon and talked with her while she stroked a small black and white dog. She nursed the dog, her cell companion, to health six months ago.

Crowd Mills About Outside
A large crowd of curious milled outside the courthouse and jail, but inside only the legal limit of 10 witnesses was present for the execution.

Toni Jo sat up last night writing to her husband, Claude E. (Cowboy) Henry, who is serving a 50 year term in the Huntsville, Tex., penitentiary for murder, and reading a stack of mail received during her last day alive.

The couple's efforts to aid each other caused Toni Jo to commit the crime for which she died and led her husband to two prison breaks.

She said she had intended to use Calloway's car to rob a bank and obtain money with which to facilitate her husband's release from prison. He in turn escaped twice in an effort to free her. He was recaptured both times.

Toni Jo's accomplice, Finnon Burks, 23, also is under death sen-

Ask That Women Be Allowed to Serve in All U. S. Courts

Washington, Nov. 30—(AP)—Congress has been asked by a committee of federal judges to standardize the qualifications for federal jurors and to permit women to serve in all United States courts.

The committee, headed by District Judge John C. Knox of New York, was named more than a year ago by Chief Justice Stone on authorization of the annual judicial conference of senior federal circuit judges.

"The committee is of the opinion", the report to the conference said, "that women as a group are capable of acting as jurors and should, irrespective of state law, be called for service in the federal courts."

State law now disqualifies women from jury service in 20 states, including Missouri.

Serving with Knox on the committee were four district judges, including Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill.

tence, but the date of his execution has not been set. Calloway was slain in 1940.

Schnackenberg Is Seeking Return to House Speakership

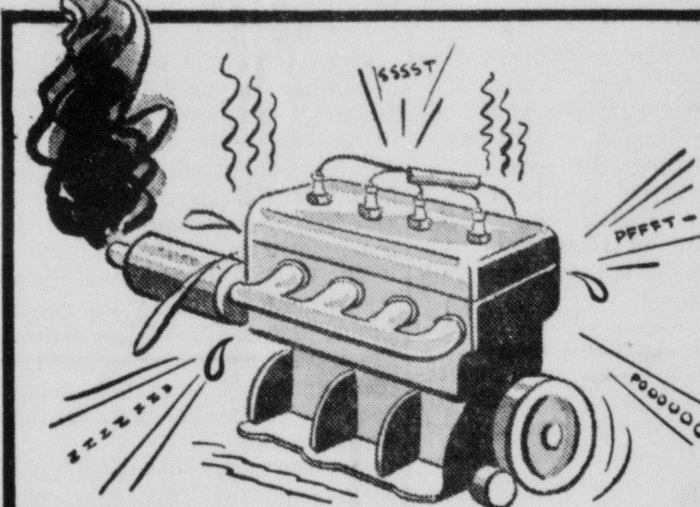

Rep. Elmer J. Schnackenberg has announced his candidacy for reelection as speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives. The selection will be made in caucus preceding the opening of the 63d general assembly's regular session Jan. 6. Some of the G.O. legislators believe he will have opposition. At the end of the last regular session, Democrats joined in the resolution commending him for his fairness and ability.

"Next January for the first time since the Civil war, the legislature of Illinois will convene its regular session at a time when the United States is at war," Schnackenberg wrote to house members. "Both you and I are to be congratulated on this opportunity to serve of state in such a critical period."

"My name will be submitted a candidate to succeed myself speaker of the house. If my service as speaker during the last two years, and as a member during terms, in your opinion merits your support of me, I shall be happy have your vote."

Text of Radio Address by Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain Sunday Eve

London, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The following is the text of Prime Minister Churchill's address Sunday night:

Two Sundays ago, bells rang to celebrate the victory of our army at Alamein.

Here was a martial episode of British history which deserved special recognition. The bells also rang with their clanging joyous notes to thanksgiving that in the face of all our errors and shortcomings we have been brought to the frontiers of deliverance.

We have not reached them yet. But we are becoming ever more entitled to be sure that the ultimate perils which might well be blotted out our life and all have and cherish, will be surmounted, and that we shall be served for further service in the vanguard of mankind.

We have to look back along the path we have trod the last few years of toil and strife to be properly all we have achieved, and all we have achieved, in mood of boastfulness, of vanity, of over-confidence, must be put to rest, but I think we are a right, which history will force, to feel we had the honor to play a part in saving the freedom and future of the world.

The wonderful association of the British Commonwealth is a will—I do not quarrel about it and above all our small island, stood in the gap alone in a daily hour.

Here we stood firm though all is drifting. Throughout the British empire not one community wavered. It was very dark.

Here we kept the light burning which now spreads broadly over the vast array of the United Nations. That is why it was not to ring out bells and lift our heads for a moment in gratitude for relief before we turned again to the grim and probably long ords which lie before us and to exacting tasks upon which we are engaged.

Serious Battle Impending
Since we rang the bells for Alamein the good cause has prospered. Our eighth army has advanced nearly 400 miles driving before them in rout and ruin the powerful forces or remnants of powerful forces with which Rommel boasted, and Hitler and Mussolini believed, Egypt would be conquered.

"Another serious battle may be impending at the entrance of Tripolitania. I make it a rule not to prophesy about battles before they are fought.

"Every one must try to realize the immense distances over which the North African war ranges and the enormous labors and self-denial of the troops who press forward relentlessly 20, 30, 40, sometimes 50 miles in a single day.

"I will say no more than that we may have the greatest confidence in Generals Alexander and Montgomery, and in our soldiers and airmen who at last have begun to come into their own.

"At the other side of Africa, a thousand miles or more to the westward, a tremendous joint undertaking of the United States and Britain which was fraught with so many hazards, has also been crowned with astonishing success.

"To transport large armies of several hundred thousand men with intricate, elaborate, modern apparatus secretly across the seas and to strike to the hour, almost to the minute, simultaneously at a dozen points in spite of all the U-boats and all the chances of weather, was a feat of organization which would long be studied with respect.

"It was rendered possible only by one sovereign fact—the perfect comradeship and undertaking prevailing between British and American ships and troops.

"We Obey Eisenhower"
"This majestic enterprise is under the direction and responsibility of the president of the United States and the first British army is serving under the orders of the American commander in chief, Gen. Eisenhower, in whose military skill and burning energy we put our faith and whose orders to attack we shall punctually and unflinchingly obey.

"Behind all lies the power of the royal navy to which is joined a powerful American fleet, all under the command of Adm. Cunningham and all subordinated to the allied commander in chief.

"It was not only that U-boats were evaded, brushed aside by powerfully escorted British and American convoys. They were definitely beaten in 10 days of conflict that followed the landings both inside and outside the Mediterranean.

"Here was no mere secrecy. We had many scores of ships continuously exposed. Large numbers of U-boats were concentrated from all quarters. Our destroyers, corvettes and aircraft took up the challenge, wore them down, beat them off. For every transport or supply ship we lost, a U-boat has been sunk or severely damaged. For every ton of Anglo-American shipping lost so far on this expedition we have gained perhaps two tons in shipping acquired or recovered in the French harbors of North and West Africa.

"In this respect, as Napoleon recommended, war has been made to support war.

"Gen. Alexander timed the battle at Alamein to suit exactly this great stroke from the west in order that his victory should encourage friendly countries to preserve strict neutrality and also to rally French forces in North and West Africa to a full sense of duty and of their opportunity.

"At this moment the first army is striking hard at the last remaining footholds of the Germans and Italians in Tunisia. American, British and French troops are pressing forward side by side, vying with each other in the generous rivalry of brotherhood.

"In this lies the hope and portent of the future.

Africa a Springboard
"I have been speaking about Africa, about the 2,000 miles of coastline fronting the underside of subjugated Europe. From all this we intend, and I will go so far as to say we expect, to expel the enemy before long.

"But Africa is no halting place. It is not a seat, but a springboard. We shall use Africa to come to closer grips.

"Any one can see the importance to us in reopening the Mediterranean to military traffic, saving the long voyage round the cape. Perhaps by this shortcut and economy in shipping we may strike as heavy a blow at these U-boats as has happened in the whole war.

"But there is another advantage to be gained by mastery of the North African shore. We open the air battle upon a new front. In order to shorten the struggle it is our duty to engage the enemy in the air continuously and on the largest scale and highest intensity. To bring relief to the tortured world there must be the maximum possible of air fighting.

"Already the German air force is a wasting asset.

"Their new construction is not keeping pace with losses. Their front line is weakening both in numbers and on the whole in quality.

"British, American, and Russian air forces are already together far larger and are growing steadily. British and United States expansion in 1943 will be, to put it mildly, well worth watching.

Up to Italian People
"All we need is more frequent opportunities for contact. The new air front which the Americans and the RAF are deploying along the Mediterranean ought to give these extra opportunities abundantly in 1943.

Thirdly, our operations in French North Africa should enable us to bring the weight of war home to the Italian Fascist state in a manner not hitherto dreamed of by its guilty leaders or still less by the unfortunate people Mussolini has led, exploited and disgraced.

"Already the centers of war industry in northern Italy are being subjected to harder treatment than any of our cities experienced in the winter of 1940. But if the enemy should be blasted from the Tunisian tip—which is our aim—the whole south of Italy, all naval bases, all munitions establishments and other military objectives wherever situated, would be brought under a prolonged scientific, and shattering air attack.

"It is for the Italian people, 40,000,000 of them, to say whether they want this terrible thing to happen to their country or not.

"One man and one man alone has brought them to this pass. There was no need for them to go to war. No one was going to attack them. We tried our best to induce them to remain neutral, enjoying peace and prosperity in a world of storm.

But Mussolini could not resist the temptation of stabbing prostrate France and what he thought was helpless Britain in the back. Mad dreams of imperial glory, the lust for conquest and booty, the arrogance of long unbridled tyr-ny led him to this fatal, shameful act.

"In vain I warned him. He would not hearken. On deaf ears and a stony heart fell the wise, farseeing appeals of the American President. The hyena in his nature broke all bounds of decency and common sense. Today his empire is gone. We have over a hundred Italian generals and nearly 300,000 of his soldiers as prisoners of war. Agony grips the fair land of Italy.

Stalin Revealed Plan
"This is only the beginning, and what have the Italians to show for it? A brief promenade by German permission along the Riviera, a flying visit to Corsica, the bloody struggle with the heroic patriots of Jugo-Slavia, the deed of undying shame in Greece, and the ruins of Genoa, Turin, and Milan.

"And this is only a foretaste. One man and the regime he created have brought these measureless calamities upon the hard working, gifted, and once happy Italian people, with whom until the days of Mussolini the English speaking world had so many sympathies and never a quarrel. How long must this endure?

"We may certainly be glad about what has happened in Africa and we may look forward with sober confidence to the moment when we may say 'one continent redeemed,' but these successes in Africa, swift and decisive as they have been, must not divert our attention from the prodigious blows which Russia is striking on the eastern front. The world wonders at the giant strength which Russia has been able to conserve and apply in the invincible defense of Stalingrad, matched by the commanding leadership of Stalin.

"When I was leaving the Kremlin in the middle of August I said to Stalin, 'When we have decisively defeated Rommel in Egypt I will send you a telegram.'

"He replied, 'When we make our counter-offensive here, and I drew the arrow on the map, I will send you one.' Both messages have duly arrived.

"As I speak, the immense battle which has already yielded results of the first magnitude is moving forward to its climax. And this, it must be remembered, is only one part of the Russian front from the White sea to the Black sea along which at many points Russian armies are attacking.

"Led by Corp. Hitler"
"The jaws of another Russian winter are closing on Hitler's armies. One hundred and eighty German divisions, many reduced to little more than brigades by the slaughters and privations they have suffered, together with a host of miserable Italians, Rumanians, and Hungarians dragged from their homes by a maniac's fantasy—all these as they reel back from the fire and steel of avenging soviet armies must prepare themselves with weakened forces and added pang for a second dose of what they got last year. They have the consolation of knowing they have been commanded and led not by the German general staff, but by Corp. Hitler himself.

"I must conduct you back to the before-victorious scene in this strange, melancholy drama has been unfolded. It was foreseen when we were planning our descent on North Africa that this would bring immediate reaction in France. I never had the slightest doubt myself but that Hitler would break the armistice, overrun all France and try to capture the French fleet at Toulon.

"Such developments were to be welcomed by the united nations because they entailed the extinction for all practical purposes of the sorry farce and fraud of the Vichy government. This was a necessary prelude to the reunion of France without which resurrection would be impossible.

"We have taken a long step toward that unity. The artificial division between occupied and unoccupied territory has been swept away. In France all Frenchmen are equally under the German yoke and will learn to hate it with equal intensity. All Frenchmen would fill with fire at the common enemy.

France Will Rise Again
"We may be sure that after what has happened the ideals and spirit of what we have called 'Fighting France' will exercise a dominating influence upon the whole French nation. I agree with Gen. De Gaulle that at last the scales of deception now have fallen from the eyes of the French people. Indeed, it was time.

"The clever conqueror," wrote Hitler in Mein Kampf, "will always if possible impose his demands on the conquered by installments. For a people that makes a voluntary surrender saps its own character and with such people you can calculate none of these oppressions in detail will supply quite enough reason for it to resort once more to arms."

"How carefully, how punctiliously, he lives up to his own devilish doctrines! The perfidy by which the French fleet was ensnared is the latest and most perfect example.

"That fleet, brought by folly and worse than folly to its melancholy end, redeemed its honor by an action of self-immolation, and from the flames and smoke of the explosions at Toulon, France will rise again.

"The ceaseless flow of good news from every theater of the war which has filled November, a new test. They have proved that they can stand defeat. They have proved that they can bear with fortitude and confidence long periods of unsatisfactory action.

"I see no reason why we should not show ourselves equally resolute, and active in the face of victory. I promise nothing. I predict nothing. I cannot even guarantee that more successes are not on the way.

Sees Long War Ahead
"I commend the immortal lines of Kipling:

"If you can dream and not make dreams your master; if you can think and not make thoughts your aim; if you can meet with triumph, disaster—treat those two imposters just the same."

"This is my text for this Sunday's sermon, though I have no license to preach one. Do not let us be led away by any fair seeming appearances of fortune.

"Let us rather put our trust in those deep, slow, moving tides that have borne us thus far already and will surely bear us forward—if we know how to use them—until we reach the harbor.

"I know of nothing that has happened yet which justifies the hope that the war will not be long or that bitter, bloody years do not lie ahead. Certainly, most painful experiences would lie before us if we allowed ourselves to relax our exertions, to weaken the disciplined unity and order of our array, if we fell to quarreling about what we should do with our victory before victory was won.

"We must not build on hopes or fears, but only on the continued, faithful discharge of our duty, wherein alone will be found safety and peace of mind.

"Remember that Hitler with his armies and secret police holds nearly all Europe in his grip. That he has millions of slaves to toil for him, a vast mass of munitions, many mighty arsenals, many fertile fields. Remember that Goering has openly declared that whoever starves in Europe it will not be Germans. Remember that these guilty villains know their lives are at stake.

"Remember how small a portion of the German army the British have yet been able to engage and destroy. Remember U-boat warfare is not diminishing, but growing, and that it may well be worse before it is better.

"Then facing facts undaunted, we shall learn how to use victory as a spur to further effort and make good fortune a means of gaining more. This much only will I say about the future, and I say it with acute consciousness of the fallibility of my own judgment.

Pledges Aid in Pacific
"It may well be that the war in Europe will end before the war in Asia. The Atlantic may be calm while in the Pacific the hurricane rages to full pitch. If events should take such a course we should of course bring all our forces to the other side of the world to aid the United States, to aid China, to aid our kith and kin in Australia, and New Zealand in the struggle against the aggressions of Japan.

"While we were thus engaged in the far east, we should be sitting with the United States, Russia, and those of the united nations concerned, shaping international instruments for national settlements which must be devised if the free life of Europe is ever to rise again and if the fearful quarrels which have rent European civilization are to be prevented from once more disturbing the progress of the world.

"It seems to me that should the war end thus—in two stages—there will be a far higher sense of comradeship around the council table than existed among the victors at Versailles.

"Then the danger had passed away. The common bond between the allies had snapped. There was no sense of corporate responsibility such as exists when victorious nations who are masters of one vast scene are most of them still waging war side by side in another.

"I should hope therefore that we shall be able to make better solutions, more far reaching, and more lasting, of the problems of Europe at the end of this war than was possible a quarter of a century ago.

"It is not much use pursuing these speculations further at this time, for no one can possibly know what the state of Europe or the world will be when the Nazi and Fascist tyrannies are finally broken.

"The dawn of 1943 will soon loom red before us, and we must brace ourselves to cope with the trials and problems of what must be a stern and terrible year.

"We do so, with assurance, ever growing strength, and as a nation, with a strong will, a bold heart, and a good conscience."

Now you can buy COFFEE AGAIN

ALL LAST WEEK grocers were not allowed to sell coffee to consumers. So you couldn't buy any. But the "freeze" is over, and since midnight, November 28, you have been able to take War Ration Book One—up to now just your "Sugar Book"—to the grocery store and buy coffee again.

Stamp No. 27 in the "Sugar Book" (lower left-hand corner) is good for one pound of coffee through Sunday, January 3, 1943, if the age shown at time of registration was 15 years or over. Any person not having a "Sugar Book" may still obtain one by registering (prior to December 15, 1942) with his local War Price and Ration Board and, subject to age limit, the stamps will be good for coffee, too.

Ration stamps for coffee must be detached by the grocer or his authorized delivery man because of the age limit. Stamps authorized for coffee must not be detached from a book "under age limit," as these stamps will have to be accounted for when the time comes to renew the "Sugar Book."

Wartime problems of production and distribution make it impossible to have enough coffee everywhere at the same time to fill all demands immediately. So spread your stamps out. If you have a number of "coffee stamps" in the family, we suggest you buy several times in the next few weeks instead of all at once. And if you have enough coffee on hand to last a while, don't rush down to the store to get your "ration." Let your less fortunate neighbors have a chance to get their coffee first. Stamp No. 27 is good through January 3, 1943.

On the other hand, if it happens that limited transportation facilities—living in the country, for instance—make buying in the specified quantities a hardship, we understand that you may apply to your local War Price and Ration Board for a certificate enabling you to buy up to five pounds of coffee at a time. (The equivalent number of stamps will be removed from your book to cover the "advance" ration.)

If there should be any change in the basis or method of coffee rationing, it will be publicly announced and your grocer will also know. You can count on him to keep you properly informed.

The quantity of coffee obtainable by anyone under Rationing Regulations at the time this goes to press will represent a greater reduction for many people than it will for others. But let's look at rationing... for coffee or any other commodity... in a sensible and reasonable manner. Rationing is a wartime measure made necessary, in the case of coffee, by interruptions in supply that have resulted from a shortage of ships... aggravated by unusual consumer buying in the past few months. And even if it serves no other purpose, rationing is a means by which everyone will be able to get his share of the coffee that is available.

It is to be hoped that many of the recent uncertainties of supply and demand that have existed across the Nation with respect to coffee will become adjusted through the functioning of coffee rationing. And let us hope, too, that as time goes on more ships will be available to bring in the supplies of green coffee that are awaiting shipment from our neighboring countries in the South and Central Americas. Statements by Government authorities have indicated a desire to increase the allowance of coffee under the rationing system just as soon as conditions will permit—perhaps even eliminate it entirely. When that happens... wholly or even in part... the coffee-pot will indeed have a new "silver lining."

A Thought for Today

Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name, bring an offering, and come before him; worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness.—Chronicles 16:29.

God attributes to place
No sanctity, if none be thither brought
By men who there frequent.—Milton.

Take It Easy on the Coffee

With consumer buying on ration stamps now in effect, if everyone who has stamps rushes right down to buy all the coffee possible, it will create a demand that would be impossible to meet and some people who really need coffee might have to go without just because other panicky housewives, with coffee on their pantry shelves, try to get more than they need.

If you have coffee enough to last a few days, then wait a few days. Even if you do need some coffee right away, if you have several coffee stamps in your family don't use them all at once. Spread them out over the entire period.

There is plenty of coffee in the country but wartime problems of production and distribution make it impossible to meet any great avalanche of retail orders in too short a space of time. So take it easy and buy only what you need for the present. You will thereby make it possible for your neighbors to have their morning cup of java.

American Logistics

For a bunch of rank amateurs, the American Service of Supply has shown a pretty keen grasp of that least known of the military sciences called "logistics."

Early Nazi successes resulted as much from skillful application of logistics as from the weight of planes, tanks and guns. The Japs, under different circumstances, used logistics in a strictly professional manner, to our great detriment. Weapons are of use only where the war is being fought.

But neither of these ever carried out a major amphibious attack, which is by far the most difficult type of all, with more certainty and precision and success than did the Americans when they moved in on North Africa.

Logistics is the science of transporting, quartering and supplying troops. There was a time when it was relatively unimportant. But not today. It would be mass murder under modern conditions to move troops against an established enemy, unless with them they had the necessary weapons, munitions, food stuffs, and other supplies, plus replacements and repair parts and facilities.

Converging simultaneously upon various widely separated beachheads in Africa came men and material from Britain and from the United States.

Their movements were so carefully correlated that no detachment had to land without possessing every weapon assigned to it.

And ever since the initial blow, the Service of Supply has kept men, armaments, munitions and other supplies flowing in a constant stream, notwithstanding the inherent difficulties plus every hindrance the axis could place in the way.

The achievement is the more remarkable because it was the first real test of our leadership, was done without opportunity for such practice, and because it involved movements of a mileage greater than anything the Nazis ever have attempted.

Donn Sutton, editor of NEA Service, in an exclusive interview with Maj.-Gen. John C. H. Lee, has told some of the amazing detail with which the logistics of the North African attack were worked out.

Behind General Lee, as head of the entire Service of Supply, stands Lieut.-Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, whose rise in rank has been probably the most phenomenal in U. S. military history. A lieutenant-colonel when the war began, he still is only a colonel in permanent rank. Yet he is supervising one of the most tremendous jobs ever given to any soldier of any rank, and supervising it exceedingly well.

To General Somervell, to General Lee, and to their subordinates our admiration goes as sincerely as to Generals Eisenhower and Clark and their men to whom has fallen the more spectacular but not one whit more important place in the North African sun.

Heroes—and Bums

Before Max Schmeling beat Joe Louis, Hitler and his Nazis were not interested in the prize fighter. After he beat Louis, Maxie was a national hero in the Reich. Then Joe polished off the German in a return bout and Schmeling became a bum at home.

Erwin Rommel was the "old fox of the desert" while he was pushing the British around in North Africa. The field marshal was presented to the German people and the world as a supreme tactician. But now, as the Afrika Korps flees in terror before General Montgomery, deserting its Italian allies to their fate, where is the hero Rommel?

Ach, he was just a bum after all.

Too Much Meat

Three Kansas City families found their refrigerator space inadequate to hold the leftovers from a two-and-a-half-pound-a-week ration of meat. Thus is confirmed the scoffing of those many housewives who, reading how we were going to be cut down on meats, scoffed incredulously.

"How long since we've averaged two and a half pounds of meat for each of us?"

Like so many other hardships, meat rationing is worse in anticipation than in realization.

Accidents' Toll

We have no up-to-date figure on deaths at the hands of the enemy since Pearl Harbor. Without doubt, even with Guadalcanal, they are far below the 42,000 who have been killed by accident in this country during the 10-month period.

Dr. Victor G. Heiser says that this toll "means a broad grin on the faces of Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito—a grin which must be wiped off and wiped off soon."

To that we say a hearty Amen.

News Behind THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Washington.—The other government officials are looking question marks at Gov. Lehman and his new Roosevelt job of food purveyor to the world-at-large.

At the time he was chosen, this government froze butter (saying our smaller production has required ships to sail with other cargo in places reserved for butter.)

It rationed coffee (after six weeks warning during which hoarders were permitted to stock up, although they really must tell what they have hidden in the basement—they really must.)

It announced milk production around Washington was short 40,000 gallons a day.

Canned goods were hard to get, as were meats.

In fact, officialdom said our food supplies were so short, an over-all ration book was in prospect.

We are so strained that OPA is requiring 300,000 hotels, restaurants and boarding houses to mark down every item served in the month of December—although it furnishes no bookkeepers to do that vast labor and will no doubt be astounded at the quick-guess results it is going to get.

All this has raised the question of where Lehman is going to get food for anyone, beyond our present obligations. It has also caused the agriculture department and OPA rationing officials to wonder how Lehman would fit in with their domestic food activities.

Furthermore, the president was pondering the choice of a government food administrator for the United States (an official of General Food and another of General Mills are reported to have been turned down for the job and ex-Congressman Marvin Jones is supposed to be slated for it.)

But how will Lehman, and the new obligations he is assuming abroad, fit into this setup—under it or above it? Will he get first call or will our people get it?

The answer seemed to be that Roosevelt has given Lehman a trapeze, not a job. The New York governor will swing around the world collecting immediate and post-war requests, but when he alights back here, his real troubles will start when he tries to fill his first order.

The Japs have significantly switched their propaganda. Not until last week did the Tokyo radio, for the first time in this war, start telling the truth about Jap losses. Up to then, they hardly admitted anything more than the damage to a rowboat or two.

There can be but one explanation of this. They are preparing their people for bad news and the obviously unfavorable turn of the war. They, too, must now know they cannot win.

This talk of amending the senate rules, to prevent future filibusters, will never be transformed into action, you may be sure. Behind the matter is the fear of senators that Roosevelt might try to jam through a peace treaty unacceptable to a strong majority. They want the rules left open for filibusters.

Indeed, there are some who say the White House's Senator Pepper brought up the anti-poll tax bill just to test the cloture and filibuster rules in anticipation of a peace fight.

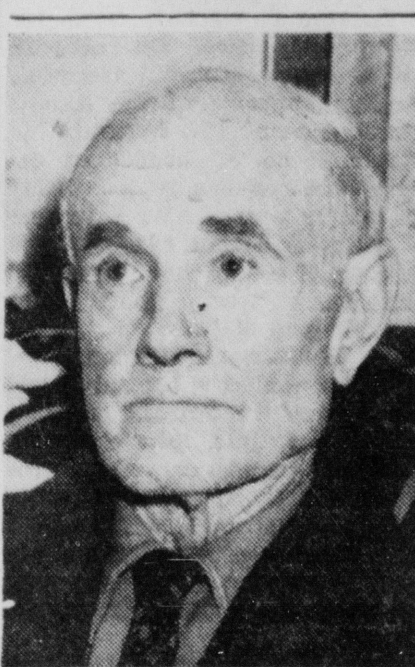

Filibustering is a practice seldom defended, because it is a device by which a minority defeats the majority. But the senate rules allowing such obstructive tactics have never been changed in all these years of our history, for a practical reason.

A great majority of the senate always realizes that each senator individually may one day have to use these tactics to protect his section of the country against a majority (for instance, New England would filibuster a bill to give the south an economic advantage over it.)

Don't forget this also: A difference between a democracy and a dictatorship is that a dictatorship abolishes minorities by persecution and otherwise, while a democracy fosters their rights.

The government's own policies are responsible for many of these food shortages. Take milk for example. There is no other reason than government policy why milk production of this nation in

W. S. FARISH

Millbrook, N. Y., Nov. 30.—(AP)—W. S. Farish, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey president who pioneered in developing Texas' first oil pool of importance, is dead.

A heart attack yesterday claimed the 61-year-old native of Mayersville, Miss., who taught school to pay his way through college and became one of America's leading petroleum men.

Farish, who helped organize and was president of the American Petroleum Institute, formed and led the national petroleum war service committee which during the last war handled all oil supplies for the allies. Recently, he had spent much time in Washington as a member of the Petroleum Industry War Council.

The name of Walter C. Teagle, president of Standard Oil for 20 years before Farish was elected in 1937, and chairman from then until his retirement last week, was among those mentioned in discussions of a possible successor as head of the two-billion dollar enterprise.

MRS. WM. GUGERTY

Mrs. William Gugerty of East Grove township passed away at the Katherine Shaw Betha hospital in this city Saturday evening at 5:15 o'clock, her death ending a brief illness. She had been a resident of Lee county practically her entire life time, having been born in Bureau county, Jan. 14, 1878 and at her passing was aged 64 years, 10 months and 14 days.

Surviving are her husband; four daughters, Mrs. Frances Sharkey of Marion township, Mrs. Doyle Morrissey of Sandwich, Mrs. Alice Payne of Walton, Miss Rita at home; eight sons, six of whom are now in the armed forces of the United States; James and Harold at home; Pvt. Michael Joseph of Camp Pickett, Va.; Pvt. William of Romulus air base, Romulus.

war time should be falling off. No national ceiling was put on milk prices, but different ceilings were established for high-price and low-price areas. For instance, Portsmouth, N. H., was a busy shipbuilding center, has been a low-priced area, and larger cities high-priced zones.

Obviously, as scarcity develops, milk is certain to go to the high-priced areas with consequent shortages in low-priced zones. This situation, plus the shortage of many cows for meat, illustrates a government-made difficulty which is more or less applicable to other commodities.

Somehow or another, government officials never seem to realize that a shortage of anything means they have fallen down on their job. They like to blame hoarders and acts of the gods of war.

Fair Enough by WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—All but a very small minority of the American people live in total ignorance of the conduct and the character of the men who constitute the ruthless, brutal and mighty sub-government of their country which calls itself the labor movement and carries on its extortions and ferocities under the patronage of the new deal party. Efforts to spread enlightenment are denounced as la'or baiting and disruptiveness and papers which publish such information have been threatened with boycott and destruction through the box office. If this writer, for example, were to say that one of the main groups had plotted to kill the president or another, that charge would be howled down as a vicious scandal and a crime against one of the social gains of the new deal.

It is with a hope of relieving this ignorance among the American people and warning them in all solemnity of the dangerous character of this subgovernment that these dispatches today discuss a speech by Phil Murray, the president of the CIO, to the hierarchy of the fifth constitutional convention of that organization in Boston on Thursday, Nov. 12.

In that speech, President Murray charged that John L. Lewis, ex-president of the CIO and dictator of the United Mine Workers, and his agents drove him, Murray, to a sick bed and that while he was seriously ill of heart trouble, one of Lewis' subordinates told his followers in a meeting to kill Murray.

This is the language that Murray used in a speech printed in the proceedings of the CIO convention, minus a few words which are eliminated in the interests of compactness but without altering his meaning:

"I told John L. Lewis that he would make me go through my Garden of Gethsemane. I felt that he would, I believed that he would. I knew that he would. He and his agents drove me to a sick bed. While I was lying on my sick bed his director of organizations of district 50 (of the United Mine Workers) told his followers in a meeting, in the presence of men who are in this hall, 'You have got to keep after this fellow Murray until you kill him; he has got to be gotten out of the way.' I could tell a story to this convention that would startle the nation but I am not going to do it."

"Kill Murray."

That is the order which the incumbent president of the CIO attributes to a subordinate of his rival, John L. Lewis, who, until a few years ago, was praised to the very skies as a holy and consecrated man of the union movement and furiously defended against the slightest doubt by the very same men who now sat by in Boston and nodded amen to Murray's charge.

They knew the character of Lewis then as well as they know it now but then they were running Lewis and building their power money which Lewis was wrested from the coal miners and families to build himself a dictatorship over all labor in the United States. Through the application of this power he might have a dictatorship over the nation government.

Was it any matter of high principle, of patriotism or labor's interest that caused this breakdown between Lewis and his old cohort?

Not at all. They broke over matter of loot and rivalry power.

Lewis built the CIO with money taken from the coal miners but the presidential campaign of 1936 he made a false move when, after a defeated rival of President Roosevelt, he promised to resign the presidency of the CIO but kept the presidency of the mine workers and control of vast treasury and income. The members of his family are paid their own great aggregate personal income from various subsidiaries of his empire. He promised to support his old comrade Phil Murray, but his ambition was to get the better of his pledge. Lewis demanded that the CIO back to the mine workers' union more than a million dollars which he had poured into the CIO while it was building. The CIO, which has comparatively little real income without the $30,000 month formerly received as capita dues from the mine workers, wouldn't pay the bill.

CIO said Lewis had given money and Lewis said it had only a loan and took his union out of the CIO, which lost $30,000 a month.

Lewis is now trying to create a third, big union under the charter of district 50 of the mine workers which contains few miners, if any, and has been gathering in construction workers, farmers and all others who can be coerced into joining.

In this Boston speech, President Murray compared himself to Jesus Christ and Lewis to Peter in these words: "You remember where Peter in the course of conversation with Christ said would never deny him and Christ said he would, he knew he would."

THE STOLEN GUN

CHAPTER XIII

"I DON'T know what to do," she cried suddenly. "They... they lied to me."

And then a smile broke out on his lips. "No!"

"Yes. Yes. They made me all kinds of promises, and didn't keep a one of them. They wanted me to work in a factory. They said I was only a Pole, after all, but they hadn't talked that way when I was home, and could still have gone over to the English."

"So!"

"I told them I was an actress. Then they said that before I could act in the Berlin State Theater I would have to prove my loyalty. They made me come to Norway."

"But what do you want me to do about it?"

She stopped, looking up at him with wide and pleading eyes. "Please don't say no to me. I thought... since you were here, and were pretending to be a high officer... maybe you could talk to the captain and get him to send me back."

Gently he put her hands away, got up, and went to the window. The clearing lay warm and still in mid-morning sunlight. Here and there beneath the trees a few red and yellow leaves slid sideways down like small ships. "What a fool I am," he thought. "Here I stand talking to her, and God knows what's going on down in the village." He looked back at the girl, and was surprised to find how much the sight of her affected him.

"So you are afraid," he said. "Why?"

"I don't know."

"Have the soldiers been unkind to you?"

"No."

"Is it my coming that made you afraid?"

"Oh, please stop asking me." She came up behind him and clasped him about the shoulders, pressing her cheek to the back of his coat. "I'm so lonely," she cried. "I hate them. I can't stand being with them any longer. You must help me."

"You will have to help yourself." At last he turned. He saw her still, that small girl riding in the park, in the beautiful Lazienki Gardens, with an officer beside her. "I know your trouble," he said. "It is a bad conscience. Do you want me to tell you the truth?"

You will never play in the State Theater in Berlin, and in your heart you know it. Nobody needs you. There are many actresses with far more talent. The Germans you loved so much have made a fool of

More Than 400 Guests Attend Wa-Tan-Ye Show

Although winter left its snowy ring card in a near-blizzard during the week end, between 400 and 450 visitors called at the Elks club to view the two-day doll show, sponsored by business and professional women of Wa-Tan-Ye. Profits, believed to amount to not less than $20, (a complete report was available this morning), will be donated to the Goodfellows, to bring Christmas cheer to the underprivileged.

Prizes were awarded for outstanding exhibits in four divisions, including patriotic orders, schools and clubs, as well as individual exhibits, competing for honors. The exhibits, selected by the jury judges before the show opened its doors on Saturday, were:

Oldest dolls: First—Dessa Sue Gutwin, who exhibited the century-old doll that belonged to Mrs. Warren Jeffries; second—Beverly Patricia Billinger.

Most attractive dolls: First—Net Ketchin, who arranged a Christmas dinner setting; second—Betty Fish, "Prayer at Twilight," a bedroom setting.

The dolls in both of these groups were handmade, the latter, from bottles and clothespins. There were entries in the humorous division of the show.

Peoria Woman Tells Clubwomen of Argentina

A large attendance of Dixon Women's club members turned out for Saturday's lecture exhibit, "An American Citizen in the Argentine," presented by Mrs. Ethel Dell Shollenberg of Peoria at the Loveland Community House.

Mrs. Shollenberg, a world traveler, lived in the Argentine for two years, while her husband was employed by the United States government as a grain inspector. She told of daily experiences of an average American woman in a foreign country.

Breakfast in Argentina, she said, means coffee, very unlike the cup served at American breakfast tables. Men are usually served a second breakfast of coffee and rolls at their places of business.

The afternoon promenade plays an important role in the day of an Argentine woman. Dressed in her very best, she promenades for a couple of hours in streets reserved for that purpose. Young girls are carefully chaperoned.

The women of Buenos Aires are the best-dressed women in the world. In Mrs. Shollenberg's opinion. The Argentines dine at 10 o'clock at night, and their menus contain very few fresh vegetables. Meat comprises 90 per cent of their diet. T-bone steaks sell for 25 cents per pound, and a lamb roast can be purchased for 35 cents.

Most of an Argentine's wardrobe is custom-made, including hats and shoes. Men are not allowed to appear in public places without coats, so in hot weather, they often wear pajama coats on the street.

Orchids sell for 50 cents a dozen in Argentina; and calla lilies, which grow in great profusion, for 15 cents a dozen. Elaborately decorated taxis may be had for a small sum, and traffic laws are amusing to visitors. License plates are not renewed each year but merely re-stamped.

Single Marine Who Escaped Wake Isle Calls It "Routine"

Leathernecks Follow Orders Every Day, Hero Declares

San Diego, Cal.—(AP)—The only man to escape death or capture at Wake Island, Lieut. Col. Walter L. J. Bayler—modestly described his departure from Wake as "simple routine."

Back in his Coronado home for the first time since the war started, Bayler said in an interview that his air journey from Wake Island resulted from compliance with orders—"something every marine does every day."

Bayler came here from the Solomons after extended duty in the aerial warfare over Guadalcanal.

Hears Many Reports

Bayler had heard reports that he flew his own battered plane, or that a navy patrol plane which landed at Wake was sent there for the specific purpose of bringing him out. Other reports, Bayler said, had him on a raft, with a canoe paddle in the open ocean.

"It was the simple routine thing of following out orders that every marine does every day," Bayler related. "This plane flew in with a small amount of official mail for the units stationed on Wake. My work was finished on Wake and I was needed at Midway. My orders read to proceed by first available air transportation to Midway—and this was the first plane and the pilot had room for one."

Air Officer Arranges Ride

Maj. Paul Putnam, aviation commander at Wake, asked the pilot if he would take Bayler to Midway, and the pilot consented.

Bayler brought with him a penciled letter from Maj. Putnam to his commanding officer. Maj. James Devereaux, commanding officer of marines, sent out considerable official mail, and many of the other officers and men sent out messages for their families. Bayler left Wake last Dec. 21. Wake fell on Dec. 23.

Sailor Becomes Sailor—

St. Louis, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Said the 20-year-old Rantoul, Ill., youth to recruiting officers: "My name is Danton Sailor and I was born October 27. I think I have something in common with the Navy. I want to enlist." The officers agreed and swore Sailor in as a naval aviation cadet.

Recover Wheel and Tire—

Arthur Johnson, residing at 2100 Third street, reported to the police Saturday night, the loss of a wheel and tire from his car. The property was recovered over the week end and returned to the owner. Floyd Smith, 1209 Second street, also reported the loss of a cocker spaniel which was found and returned.

Treacherous Wheeling—

Many motorists who sought to take advantage of the last Sunday before gas rationing becomes effective tomorrow, found the streets of Dixon quite slippery and dangerous Sunday before the street department sprinkled ashes on the glassy surface. There were many minor collisions in which personal feelings and fenders were damaged to some extent, according to police reports, but no serious damage was incurred.

Plan Christmas Holidays—

Dixon retail stores will be open until 9:00 o'clock each evening from Thursday, Dec. 17, until Christmas is decided at a meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce this morning, at which time it was also decided to invite Santa Claus to visit the city again this year. Holiday decorations will adhere to WPB decrees. N. H. Kaiserman, Walter C. Knack and Harry Bates were made members of a committee to have charge of the holiday activities.

Reds Claim Heavy Toll

The soviet newspaper Izvestia said that in the 10 days ending yesterday 100,000 Germans had been killed and the special communique reported that in the Stalingrad region alone 66,000 Germans had been captured in the same period.

The midday communique announced the capture of several more communities on the central front. An arm of the offensive groped south from Rzhev along the Rzhev-Vyasna railroad, threatening to take from the rear the advanced nazis stronghold at Gzhatsk, on the Smolensk highway 100 miles from Moscow.

Dispatches from Stalingrad said the Germans, after losing the battle along the Don loop, were seeking to form a new line to the east, within the Don-Volga corridor, to protect their divisions before the city.

munique said, and allied fighters were credited with destruction of four enemy planes in operations over forward areas.

The allied announcement failed to disclose the extent of the thrust toward Tunis but the Morocco radio said yesterday the allies already were within cannon range of that capital of Tunisia.

Allies Cut Railroads

Being astride the railroad, these forces have cut the only link between the axis defense zones except for the coastal road. Absence of reports of fighting west of Djedida suggested the allies were attacking one town at a time, or were leaving Bizerte to a column advancing along the northern coast.

Simultaneously with the allied assault on the hastily contrived axis defenses in Tunisia, German and Italian communiques reported that the 8th Army's tanks struck the first blow at Marshal Rommel's El Aghelia line in Libya. The axis claimed these attacks repulsed; the British kept silent.

A storm of allied aerial bombs burst upon the axis in North Africa and Italy last night and yesterday, underscoring Prime Minister Churchill's declaration that the enemy soon would be cast from his African footholds and that the Italians must get out of the war or be bombed out.

Punishing Attacks

Tunis, Bizerte and Tripoli were targets of new punishing attacks over the week-end in a prelude to impending assaults by American and British land forces in Africa, and the great Italian industrial city of Turin shuddered to the impact of RAF bombs last night for the second time in 24 hours.

Shipping and harbors were blasted at three axis-held African ports and traffic along Marshal Rommel's road of escape towards Tripoli were strafed.

From Vichy came a broadcast that British troops on the Tunisian-Algerian border had been reinforced by armored units.

This account from the axis-controlled Vichy station said the Germans had captured a height in the Tunisian mountains, taken 110 prisoners and shot down several allied bombers over Tunis.

Allies Reinforced

British Middle East headquarters said there was nothing to report on activities of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 8th Army, getting its second wind after chasing Rommel's Africa Corps 800 miles across North Africa.

The victorious British desert fighters presumably were bringing up fresh forces and supplies for an assault on the German and Italian remnants drawn up in the natural fortifications of the El Aghelia defile.

The fighting for the last foothold of the axis in Tunisia apparently was growing in intensity in the Bizerte-Tunis area and the Paris radio reported that fighting also was in progress near Soussou, on the coastal road some 70 miles southeast of Tunis.

French troops under General Henri Giraud had been reported active in this region earlier, apparently in an effort to prevent axis forces in Tripoli from reaching the German and Italian strongholds at Bizerte and Tunis.

The Vichy radio said several allied attacks supported by tanks had been repulsed by axis troops in the coastal and central regions of Tunisia and 112 allied prisoners had been taken. Axis aircraft took part in the fight and shot down 16 allied planes, the Vichy radio claimed.

HIMMLER IN TOULON?

London, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Roundabout dispatches reported today that Heinrich Himmler, chief of the German Gestapo, had arrived in Toulon to deal with the aftermath of the destruction of the French home fleet by its own officers and men.

The Moscow radio broadcast a Tass dispatch datelined Geneva which said Himmler was at the French Mediterranean naval base while the nazis were carrying on a campaign to arrest and punish all Frenchmen in the former occupied zone accused of opposing the German authorities or belonging to illegal organizations.

Such persons, together with officers who opposed the demobilization of the French Army, will be tried by court martial, the Tass dispatch said, and may face sentences of death.

The Iris, a 597-ton French submarine, was reported immobilized at Barcelona, Spain, where her crew brought her for refuge after slipping out of the naval base at Toulon.

She was the only warcraft known to have left Toulon when the French fleet there was scuttled.

Under international law, the commander of the Iris had 48 hours to make his boat seaworthy and quit the neutral port, but a Reuters dispatch from Madrid declared that Spanish naval mechanics Sunday had boarded the vessel and removed essential machine parts.

Amendments Made in Federal Rent Regulations Here

Notification and clarification of maximum rent regulations governing rent adjustments are made in two amendments announced today by Administrator Fremont Kaufman. The amendments make the following changes in the provisions setting the conditions under which residential rents may be modified from the ceiling—the amount charged on the maximum rent date:

No adjustment will be granted because of changes in the housing accommodations which were anticipated by the landlord and tenant and reflected in the rent charged on the date determining the maximum rent.

Increases may be ordered where a major capital improvement occurred during the term of a lease which was in effect on the maximum rent date. The amendment removes the previous limitation, which specified that the improvement must have occurred within the six months prior to the maximum rent date.

An adjustment may be granted where the rent on the maximum rent date was fixed by a lease which had been in force more than one year on that date. The new language of the regulation excludes from consideration the date of signing and substitutes the date on which occupancy was to commence.

The changes are contained in a supplementary amendment to the maximum rent regulations for housing accommodations other than hotels and rooming houses, effective Nov. 23rd.

'Fill 'er Up' Order

supplemental applications will have been acted upon "within a short time," they said.

Jenkins said that although most latecomers were applying for the supplemental "B" books, many were persons who had neglected to obtain basic "A" books entitling them to the minimum 32 gallons for driving until January 21.

Penalties Stressed

Reports that some individuals have stored gasoline in homes and garages for future use prompted Jenkins to warn them that if they use the hoarded gasoline after the rationing program goes into effect they must destroy coupons equal to the amount of the gasoline they use. He pointed out that penalties for violation of this provision of the regulation are a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than ten years, or both, and the revocation of the coupon book.

Jenkins also stressed that the basic "A" book coupons are intended to take care of occupational driving up to 150 miles per month. The minimum 32 gallons, on the basis of 15 miles per gallon, will furnish 480 miles of driving for a two-month period, allowing an estimated 90 miles extra per month for incidental purposes.

Nevertheless, transportation companies, many of them with revised schedules and extra buses, expected a huge increase in patronage from motorists who will be leaving their cars at home.

Much Misunderstanding

Noting a "lack of understanding" on the part of applicants for supplemental rations, Jenkins emphasized that such applicants must prove, among other things, essentiality of occupation to the war effort, evidence of bona fide car-sharing arrangements and signatures of such participants, and evidence that no other adequate means means of transportation is available.

The state director announced that his office has ordered local boards to issue temporary rations to all commercial operators on proof that an application for a certificate of war necessity has been filed with the office of defense transportation.

For the benefit of holders of basic "A" books, Jenkins outlined these essential points:

1. The first ration period extends from December 1, 1942, through January 21, 1943. Coupons numbered "3" may be used during this period. Each coupon has a unit value of four gallons.
2. Dealers will not honor detached or torn coupons, and only service station attendants may remove coupons during transactions.
3. Coupons are invalid until the lawful holder has signed in ink his name, street address and city in the back of the book. The number of the federal use tax stamp for the vehicle to which the book is assigned must be written on the coupon book's front cover.
4. Coupons must be endorsed on the reverse side with car license number and state of registration, using 1942 number until new plates are obtained, and 1943 numbers thereafter.

Allied Forces

Bouganville, 260 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

Two enemy bombers made the third straight night nuisance raid on American positions on the island Friday night. They dropped bombs near the mouth of the Lunga river, but caused no damage.

In contrast with this greatly curtailed enemy activity, the result of smashing blows dealt the axis in the Solomons early this month was a report made by a marine combat engineer on the first two months of the American occupation of Guadalcanal.

Tells Frequent Bombings

Capt. Walter R. Lytz said the airfield was repeatedly and accurately bombed while he was there, although damage was quickly repaired; that day and night aerial attacks and night naval bombardments were frequent, and that the Japanese on land were constantly punching at the American lines so that the engineers completing and extending the airfield sometimes had to fight all night and then work all day.

Saturday's communique indicated that the Japanese have been on the defensive, except for nuisance activity, since their greatest effort at reconquest of the Solomons was crushed by American air and naval power two weeks ago.

That they were collecting for another big push is generally accepted in naval quarters and this fact gave special significance to the destructive aerial attacks on Munda and Kahili—bases which the Japs would use in gathering their ships, planes, men, and supplies for their next try.

Lytz said enemy casualties were higher than ours because the Japanese never let up when they try to take a point until they succeed or die.

Use Captured Supplies

"Jap soldiers are either courageous or crazy," he remarked. "In a fight they're hell. They rush a position at night, screaming. You shoot the hell out of them and they keep on pushing in. Their ships get in the trees and sometimes stay there for days."

The job of the combat engineers at the outset was to complete the airfield. The engineers had to build up a section of runways of about 180 feet to complete the 2,000 foot runways. The Japanese had under construction. They took about a week for the job.

Every day, Lytz related, the Japanese came over but they dropped no bombs until the work of the engineers was almost finished. Their bombing then was quite accurate, Lytz said, and some of the work had to be done over again.

U. S. Pilots Argue

Somewhere in New Guinea, Nov. 30.—(AP)—American Flying Fortresses rode out stormheads to bomb four enemy destroyers caught off New Britain. Two ships were hit definitely; others fled northward at full steam.

Hours after the fortresses returned, their attacks on the ships the pilots were good-naturedly arguing about who got what.

They were Capt. Benton S. Daniels, Hollis, Okla.; Marshall Nelson, Fisher, Ill.; and Lieut. Charles MacArthur, Tateville, N. C.; William Thornton, Montgomery, Ala.; Charles Olson, Salt Lake City; and Frederick Wesche of Roselle, N. J.

The planes sighted the destroyers shortly after noon moving in formation, two abreast. The distance between the front two and the rear ones was about 1,000 yards and the ships were executing violent bomb-dodging maneuvers in an effort to avoid the Fortresses' 500-pounders.

Since each pilot was positive he scored at least one hit, it was a toss-up who got the two ships.

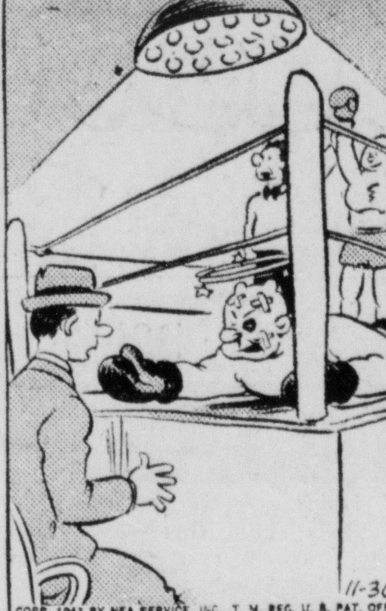

Capt. Daniels said his bombs hit directly across the deck of one ship behind the stacks. When last seen the vessel was burning, listing sharply, and trying to reach a nearby island.

Nelson said he took his bombardier on only one run and that two bombs struck the target.

The second ship, on which all the planes reported hits or near misses, was last seen limping in the same direction of the other wounded destroyer.

All the allied planes were undamaged despite heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Four Soldiers Are Decorated by Gen. Douglas MacArthur

Somewhere in Australia.—(AP)

Gen. Douglas MacArthur has awarded soldier's medals to four officers and men for heroism displayed on Nov. 1 when they aided in rescue work following the crash of a B-25 bomber. The bomber crashed on an airdrome and burst into flames after a running battle with seven Japanese fighters.

Those honored are Capt. Alonzo J. Beavers, Jr., Houston, Tex., and Pvt. John Leclair, Lakewood, O., of the medical corps; and Lieut. Robert D. Lauer, Newport, O., and Sgt. Howard W. Deal, Alto, Tex., of the army air force.

Deal was the first man to reach the burning bomber. He removed the lower turret gunner, helped rescue the co-pilot and then helped dispose of the plane's bomb load. Lauer removed the fuses from six 500 pound bombs in the path of the spreading flames.

Beavers, with small arms ammunition exploding in the forward section, removed other wounded members. Leclair removed two men from the wreckage and helped the flight surgeon render first aid.

Baseball Comes Up for Judgment This Week

Winter Meet of Leagues Opens Tues.

Convention Promises to Be Most Important in History

Chicago, Nov. 30—(AP)—Baseball, given safe conduct through one wartime season, comes up for judgment again this week in the annual winter meeting of the major and minor leagues.

And in view of new and graver problems than those confronting a stunned "day after Pearl Harbor" major league convention last year, this week's session may develop into the most important in baseball's history.

Executives began arriving last night and today. And while the business meetings do not officially open until Tuesday, operators were quick to get together for an exchange of views on such issues as salary freezing, revised player limit proposals, additional night games and spring training adjustments.

The minor leagues, which swing into their discussions on Friday, are expected to be the hardest hit by manpower and travel curtailment. Rule amendments to settle rights of players and territories of leagues forced to disband are up for major attention.

Meet With Landis
The major leagues will hold separate meetings tomorrow and Wednesday and on Thursday will meet jointly with Commissioner K. M. Landis.

While operational problems appeared uppermost in the minds of the baseball representatives, there still was trade talk. One report concerns the efforts of Branch Rickey, new Brooklyn president, to get a first base replacement should Dolph Camilli, stick with his retirement plans. Rickey was supposed to have his eyes on any one of several Chicago Cub first sackers.

One trade possibility involved the Philadelphia A's swapping outfielder Bob Johnson and first baseman Dick Seibert for first baseman Joe Kuhel and second baseman Don Kolloway of the Chicago White Sox.

Two newly appointed 1943 managers, both in the American league, will be on hand for the sessions. They are Steve O'Neill who replaced Del Baker at Detroit, and Ossie Bluege, who took over Buckeye Harris' duties at Washington.

Princeton High Forfeits All of '42 Grid Games

Princeton, Ill., Nov. 30—(AP)—Princeton high school, football champion of the North Central prep Conference, has forfeited all its games after discovering one of its players was over the 19 year age limit, Principal O. V. Shaffer revealed today.

Shaffer learned last week, after Princeton had won the North-eastern division title and had defeated Ottawa, the Southwestern division victor, for the league championship, that Capt. William Hanson was 20 years old. The principal said he was sure Hanson had unintentionally given an incorrect birthdate when registering as a freshman in 1939, making it appear he was only 18.

Shaffer promptly notified the Illinois High School Association headquarters and also sent letters to all schools which Princeton had played this fall, reporting the oversight and forfeiting each of Princeton's grid victories.

C. W. Whitten, advisory secretary of the I. H. S. A., wrote Shaffer commending him on the prompt report and pointing out no penalty would be imposed on Princeton high school because of the "obviously inadvertent violation" of the rules.

Chicago, Nov. 30—(AP)—After watching his Cleveland Rams battered 47 to 0 yesterday, Dutch Clark applauded the Chicago Bears' line with a few words of praise—which was only natural for his team had a minus 12 yards trying to break through it.

"That line is a marvel", he shuddered. "Washington's first line is tough, but I'd rate the Bears superior from end to end—and they've also got better reserves. The playoff (Dec. 13) may be decided by the men up front rather than those behind."

The Bears yesterday rolled to their biggest victory margin of the season in reaching the milestone of 23 games without defeat, 17 in the National football league action.

The 47-0 score also gave the Bears an average of 35.5 points in 10 straight league victories this fall.

The national champions close their regular schedule Sunday against the Chicago Cardinals at Comiskey park and a win would give them their first unbeaten, untied campaign since 1934.

Steelers in Second
Other final games send Pittsburgh against Green Bay at Milwaukee and Brooklyn to New York.

Washington completed its best league season in 11 years yesterday by pounding the Detroit Lions 15 to 3. The losers established a record by not getting a victory all fall.

The Pittsburgh Steelers shutout the Brooklyn Dodgers 13 to 0, winding up their best season in history with seven wins and second place in the Eastern division.

The New York Giants gained third place by beating the Cardinals 21 to 7.

The Green Bay Packers pressed through the Philadelphia Eagles 7 to 0 on a 31-yard Cecil Isbell touchdown pass in the first quarter. It was the 21st touchdown pass thrown by Isbell this season and the 17th accepted by Hutson. Isbell swelled his completions to 128, a new record, in 237 attempts for 1,778 yards, also a new record. Hutson has scored 132 points and has caught 73 aeriels for 1,204 yards—all for new records.

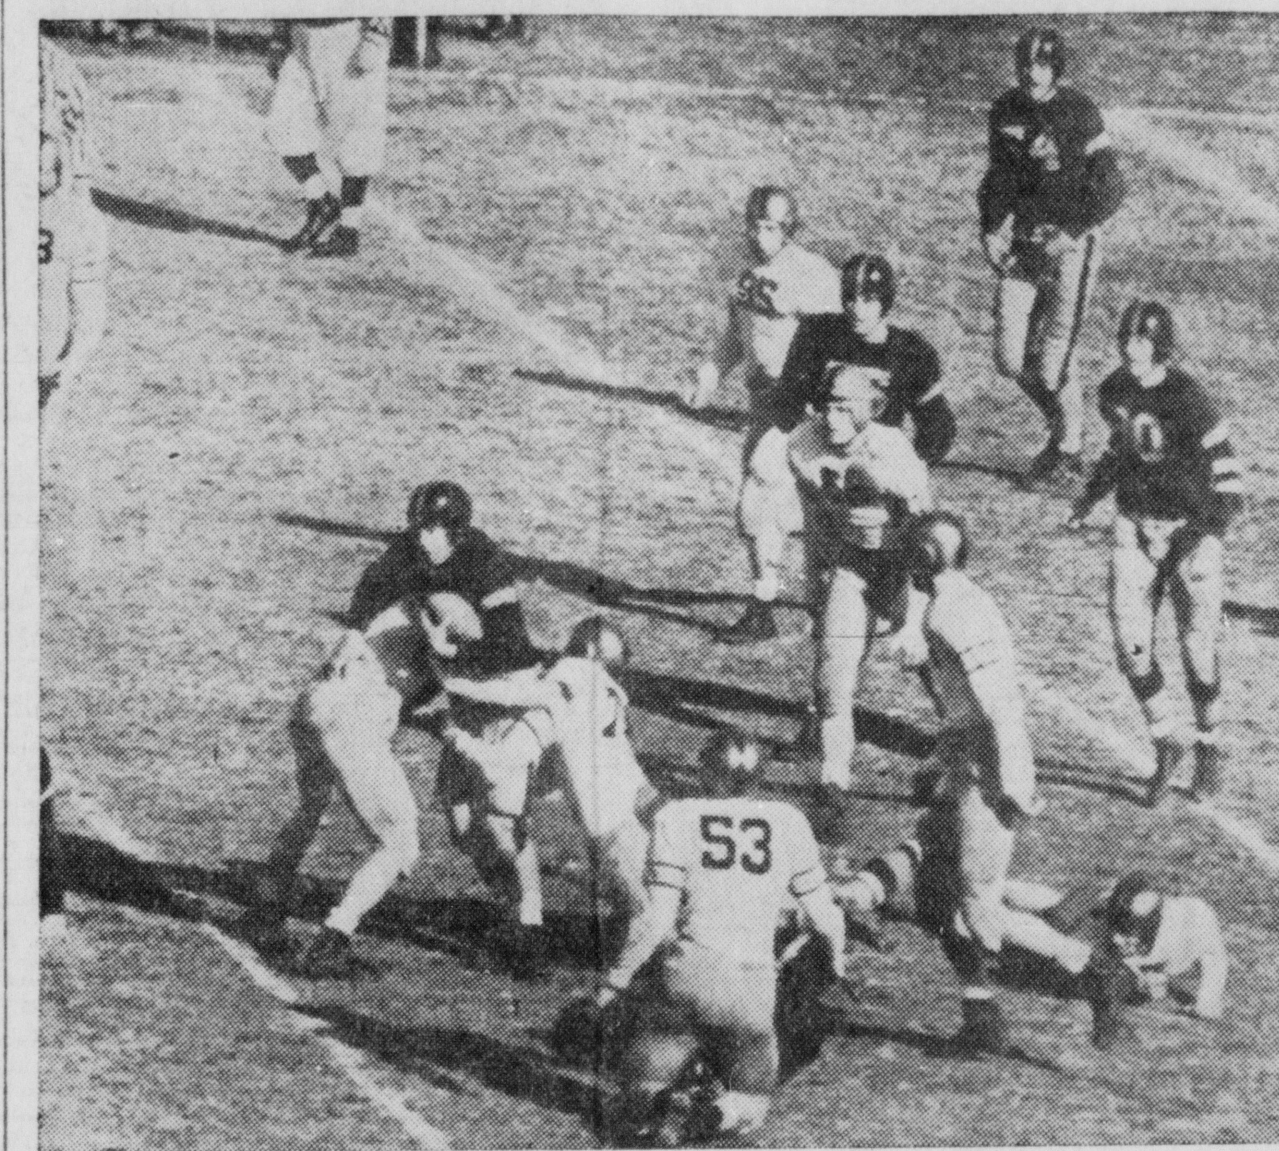

The Missouri-Iowa Seahawk game will be played at Kansas City.

The Western Conference race officially came to a close last week with Michigan defeating Iowa in the league's finale, 28-14, and thus gaining a third place tie with Illinois in the standings. Each won three games and lost two.

In addition to Ohio State, which wound up with nine victories and a defeat by Wisconsin, two other conference members played service teams Saturday. Illinois turned back Camp Grant, 20-0, while Indiana trounced Fort Knox, 51-0.

Kick Backs on All-America Team Come from California

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

Chicago, Nov. 30—There are kick-backs on the All-America team, of course, and the most robust one comes from the west coast.

"Alyn Beals of Santa Clara was an All-America end if you ever saw one," telegraphs Tom Laird, veteran sports editor of The San Francisco News.

"He caught eight of nine passes against the California Pre-Flighters—the last one a shoestring catch in the clutch right in front of Bobby Grayson. Last season, as a junior, he scored a dozen touchdowns."

"Marchie Schwartz of Stanford describes Beals as the best end he has seen in college since Don Hutson's senior year at Alabama—1933. I say he is the finest since Brick Muller of California and the early 20s. Nick Susoff of Washington State wasn't in his class."

Other Nominees
"My next nomination would have been Chuck Taylor, Stanford guard."

"Johnny Sanchez of the University of San Francisco was the most formidable tackle on the Pacific coast by 10 miles. He averaged 58.25 minutes per game."

"Wait Harrison of Washington was the top center. Jimmy Phelan, who had him last fall, says he is the smartest player he ever coached."

"Jess Frietas, Santa Clara left halfback, should have been on the second or third team. He was by far the best passer out here, and runs well."

Injuries Hurt
Bruce Alford, Texas Christian's left end, and Roy Dale McKay, Texas fullback, would have been the choices of Pop Boone, who has been sports editing The Fort Worth Press longer than he cares to remember.

Boone admits, however, that the Southwest Conference was somewhat shy of Jack Kimbroughs this trip. War took some of the leaders and all teams were knocked down by injuries.

Texas would have finished as the nation's No. 1 club, in Boone's opinion, had not McKay been hurt before the Texas Christian game.

Texas Christian lost Bruce Alford, Palmer and McCulloch, key men, before the Baylor "upset."

The Horned Frogs, as Pop Boone points out, lacked the manpower to absorb such a loss, so it really wasn't so much of an upset.

Grid Season in the Middle West Will Close Sat.

Chicago, Nov. 30—(AP)—Football in the midwest, scene of some of 1942's hottest grid action, comes to an end Saturday with Notre Dame opposing the Great Lakes powerhouse and Iowa's preflight eleven playing Missouri.

The Notre Dame-Great Lakes clash will take place in huge Soldier Field with the possibility that as many as 50,000 spectators may watch the two teams.

The Missouri-Iowa Seahawk game will be played at Kansas City.

New York, Nov. 30—(AP)—Look for a tremendous turnover in football coaching before next season (if there is a next season).

... The news that Dick Harlow of Harvard and Jack Hagerty of Georgetown had joined the Navy gave a hint of what you can expect, Dartmouth's Tuss McLaughry and Syracuse's Ossie Solem both are looking for commissions and plenty of others will pursue the same search now that the season is virtually over.

Conference Champs
All told, the day's activities added to the lineup of conference champions until now it looks like this:

Western—Ohio State.
Ivy league—Pennsylvania.
Southeastern—Georgia.
Big Three—Yale.
Southwest—Texas.
Big Six—Missouri.
Southern—William and Mary.
Missouri Valley—Tulsa.
Big Seven—Utah and Colorado (tie).

Pacific Coast—Still undecided.
Washington State lost a chance to clinch a tie for the Pacific Coast crown by playing a scoreless deadlock with Washington Saturday, leaving U. C. L. A. on the inside track with four victories and one defeat, Southern California, which still has a chance for a title tie, plays Montana this week and U. C. L. A. meets Idaho in conference play. Then U. S. C. collides with the Uclans Dec. 12 in what looms as the deciding game.

Loss Chance For Tie
The Pacific Coast champ, when selected, will go into the Rose Bowl, Jan. 1, against Georgia, which was invited soon after its Saturday victory.

Tennessee closed its season with a 19-7 triumph over Vanderbilt and was named to play in the Sugar Bowl against Tulsa, Missouri Valley champion.

With the Southwest Conference title tucked away, Texas has qualified for the Cotton Bowl and Georgia Tech has been invited as the other team.

In Saturday's Southwest Conference games, Rice blanked Baylor, 20-0, and Texas Christian whipped Southern Methodist, 14-6. The loop will close its season with S. M. U. playing Rice Saturday, although Texas A. and M. has an intercollegiate date with Washington State the same day.

Midwest Cagers to Open Shooting

Chicago, Nov. 30—(AP)—College basketball starts taking over the spotlight in the midwest this week with two Western Conference teams, Notre Dame and the Great Lakes service squad all scheduled for a part on the action.

The two Big Ten schools involved are Chicago and Wisconsin. The Maroons, getting back into the conference athletic picture, will play the Glenview, Ill., naval air base team on Wednesday. Wisconsin is at home to Marquette on Saturday.

Notre Dame, having walloped Ball State in its opener last week, 56-42, returns to action Friday against Western Michigan.

Great Lakes, winner of 31 of 36 games last season, open its second campaign tomorrow night against the Milwaukee Teachers.

Dizziest Grid Season Yet Nearly Over

Pacific Coast Only Section Which Hasn't Named Champ

New York, Nov. 30—(AP)—The dizziest football season of them all, complicated by the uncertainties of war, had all but run its course today.

In spite of an unprecedented quota of form reversal, all sections have succeeded in crowning champions except the Pacific Coast, where they may need another two weeks to find a conference titlist and a host team for the Rose Bowl game.

Although there still are a few odds and ends to be picked up elsewhere, the remainder of the country saw the screwy campaign stagger to what amounted to a finish Saturday.

Holy Cross, a 4-to-1 underdog, crushed Boston college's previously Eagles, 55-12. Navy pinned a 14-0 defeat on an Army team that was favored at 3-to-1. And Georgia, humbled by Auburn the week before, bounced back to ruin Georgia Tech's spotless record, 34-0.

Four Badgers Land on Big Ten All-Stars

Schreiner, Negus, Harder, Hirsch Are Selected

By Charles Chamberlain

Chicago, Nov. 30—(AP)—Lending a befitting climax to Wisconsin's finest football season in 34 years was the selection of four of its players for the 1942 Western Conference All-Star team, chosen annually for The Associated Press by conference coaches.

Finishing their Big Ten season in second place behind Ohio State, the Badgers dominated the poll for the first time in the school's history by landing Dave Schreiner at end, sophomore Fred Negus at center, sophomore Elroy Hirsch at halfback and Pat Harder at fullback.

The selections:

McGovern Mark
Unthreatened by Steuber, Fekete

New York, Nov. 30—(AP)—Although both Bob Steuber of Missouri and Gene Fekete of Ohio State, increased their scoring totals in last week's games neither did it with enough fervor to threaten the leadership of Eddie McGovern of Rose Poly, whose team completed its schedule two weeks ago.

Steuber remains in third place with 114 points to 165 for McGovern and has another chance this Saturday. With the Iowa pre-flight team furnishing the opposition, however, it is unlikely that the Missouri halfback will wipe out the 51-point difference.

James Secrest, Rochester halfback who also has been idle the past two weeks, retains second place with 133 tallies and Frank Sinkwich of Georgia is fourth with 96. A touchdown and five conversions against the Iowa Seahawks Saturday, lifted Fekete to an aggregate of 92.

Consecration of Bishop Boylan in About 3 Months

Bishop Elect Boylan of the Rockford diocese is a widely known Catholic educator and has been president of Dowling college at Des Moines since 1923. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1915 at Providence, R. I. In 1918, he was appointed a professor at Dowling, then Des Moines college, and became head of the institution five years later. He was named monsignor by the late Pope Pius XI, in 1933.

Last year he was appointed a prothotary apostolic by Pope Pius XII and cited for his outstanding work in education.

Details of the consecration ceremony for Bishop Elect Boylan have not been arranged, but it will be held in Des Moines in about three months according to Bishop Gerald T. Bergen. Installation of the new bishop will follow in Rockford.

Bishop Bergen said the consecration will be one of the most elaborate events in the history of Des Moines diocese, and that high church dignitaries from all sections of the midwest will attend.

Bishop Elect Boylan was being flooded with congratulatory messages today.

"It is with deep regret that I leave Des Moines and its fine citizens, as well as the boys of Dowling college," he said.

13 Counties in Diocese
During his presidency, Dowling has made rapid forward strides. From an enrollment of 90, the student body has grown until it now numbers 400. The physical property of the college also has kept pace with its educational growth.

The Rockford diocese includes 13 counties of northern Illinois west of Chicago. It has a Catholic population of 65,000, with 200 priests and 85 parishes. Catholic institutions in the diocese are, seven high schools, 49 parochial schools, eight hospitals, one orphanage, and two homes for the aged.

The bishop elect's immediate family all live in Providence, R. I., they include his mother, Mrs. Edward Boylan; three sisters, Rose, Mary and Agnes; and two brothers, Hugh and Edward.

CANADA HAS THE SAME HEADACHE

(Toronto Globe and Mail)
Judge Parker's ruling setting aside the conviction of a Toronto tire dealer for violating an order of the deputy controller of supplies brings into the open a point which has been disturbing people who know nothing about law. The control system has hit them in so many ways that they are tempted to ask if every person wearing a government tag is empowered to issue "musts" and "must not's" and cause arrests for disobedience. The "man on the street" can hardly be blamed for blinking and wondering where he stands as an entity in a democracy.

Into this state of affairs Judge Parker has thrown an observation which will be welcomed for its clarification: "Looking at the problem in Canada today, one must realize that the government of Canada cannot go on without the delegation of wide legislative authority to the executive, but one must also realize that that delegation cannot develop to the extent that our democratic government blossoms into a bureaucracy and dictatorship. The delegation of powers is never dangerous in itself; the danger lies in the manner in which these powers are administered, to wit, in this instance by the attempt of the governor in council to pass on, without authority, to a third person the powers delegated to it alone."

The decision should awaken parliament to a realization of how seriously it has neglected its duties in permitting legislative responsibilities to pass into the hands of bureaucrats.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Demanded" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 29.

The Golden Text was, "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong" (1 Cor. 16:13).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. Then said Jesus unto him, Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve. And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people" (Matt. 4:1, 10, 23).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Sin and disease must be thought before they can be manifested. You must control evil thoughts in the first instance, or they will control you in the second. Evil thoughts, lusts and malicious purposes cannot go forth, like wandering pollen, from one human mind to another, finding unsuspected lodgment, if virtue and truth build a strong defense" (p. 234, 235).

Hair and bobby pins last year used enough steel to make 1333 three-inch anti-aircraft guns.

France Will Not Die Says Chief of State

London, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Marshal Petain took cognizance of the German demobilization of the French army and the self destruction of the French fleet Saturday in an order of the day read over the Vichy radio which promised that "France will not die" and will "always remember your regiments."

The order of the day said: "The marshal of France, commander-in-chief, to the officers and soldiers and sailors of the armies of the land and air forces and the navy:
"You who joined the army in a spirit of sacrifice are today undergoing a trial which pains my soldier's heart. France will always remember your regiments that have been torn apart and your ships that have disappeared.
France will never allow your glorious traditions to perish. Officers, soldiers, and sailors, stand beside the man who loves you for your own sake. When you salute your flag I ask you to keep intact in your hearts the words, 'honor and fatherland.' France will not die."

Mrs. Johnson Wonders How Head Hunters Are Bearing Up in Pacific

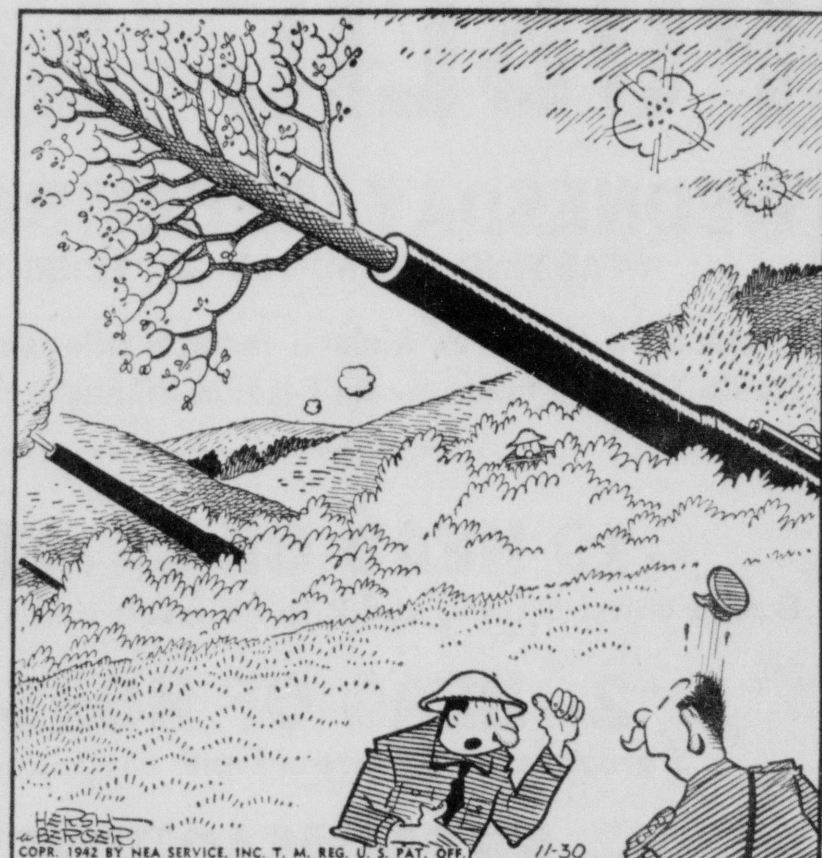

Kansas City, Nov. 30.—(AP)—
Mrs. Osa Johnson, Chanute, Kas., explorer who with her late husband, Martin Johnson, visited many South Pacific islands, wonders just how the native head hunters are bearing up.

"I'll bet the cannibal natives are wondering why we're killing so many Japs," she said. "They know we can't possibly eat all of them."
Mrs. Johnson said she and her husband saw signs of Japanese infiltration on their first visit to Guadalcanal in 1912. Ishmote, the Japanese generalissimo reported killed in battle several days ago, was a tailor and carpenter on the island then.

"He made two shirts for me. He mended furniture and did odd jobs —and always carried a camera."

Germans Captured by American Force Now Enroute to U. S.

Members of Armistice Commission Prisoners of War Aboard Ship

With United States Army at Fedhala, French Morocco, Nov. 24 (Delayed)—(AP)—The German members of the axis armistice commission captured by the United States army in Morocco are on their way to the United States as prisoners of war, it was disclosed today. How many were in the group was not indicated.

Rene Rougeron, manager of the exclusive shore front hotel. The Miramar, said that 19 members of the commission were living there when the Americans struck. Some were killed within 50 yards of the hotel, another was shot and killed as he tried to drive through the American lines and others got away in automobiles.

At one time, Rougeron said, there were 36 Germans living at the hotel, including some who operated an air transport and mail service to Germany.

Served Selves Well

The commission members took good care of themselves as well as their Fuehrer. Besides arrangements for shipments to the reich of huge supplies of minerals, wool, phosphates, and alcohol, they managed to send relatives and friends back home costly packages of food, soap, coffee, tea, sugar, perfumes, and leather goods.

In their rooms were found expensive stationery, toilet water, the best wines and other delicacies and fine Moroccan wallets and luggage.

Let them lost sight of their duty in this Arabian night's wonderland, portraits of Hitler and Goering frowned down from the walls beside the motto in German, "what would the Fuehrer think of this?"

"They were specialists in their economic fields and stripped us of everything. Eighty per cent of our products went to them and we could do nothing," Rougeron said.

"They did not dare wear uniforms as long as Gen. (Maxime) Weygand was in control in Africa. They were worried and afraid of him. As soon as he was out of the war, however, they all came out in uniforms, like peacocks."

He said the French in Africa had been hoping for more than a year that the Americans would come. He was unperturbed by the fact that the hotel sustained several hits by naval shells during a bombardment of shore batteries on nearby Cape Fedhala.

Entries in Chicago Market Fat Stock Show Unexpected

Chicago, Nov. 30—(AP)—Entries far exceeding expectations began arriving today for the four-day Chicago market fat stock show, wartime substitute for the famous International Live Stock Exposition, which has been canceled.

Blooded cattle, sheep and swine from 15 states and two Canadian provinces are entered in the show, which opens Wednesday at the stock yards.

Manager B. H. Heide, veteran of the International Exposition said 6,349 head of prime livestock, including 479 animals belonging to boys and girls, will be registered by the time gates open at 8 a. m., Wednesday.

It will be only a one-way trip for all entries because of war-time transportation needs, all animals shown are to be slaughtered. Thus, no extra burden will be placed on transportation as the stock would be sent to market anyway.

As usual there will be a grand champion steer but price ceilings on meat are expected to keep his value down compared with the champions of peacetime International Expositions. Champions will be chosen in other divisions. No horses will appear at the show, however.

Since the International Amphitheater, usually site of the exposition, is occupied by the Army, all of the show stock will be exhibited in open pens in the yards, with the entrance on Exchange avenue. Judging will be conducted in enclosures nearby.

As a preliminary feature judges Tuesday will pick championships in carload lots of sheep and swine.

Virgil Pinkley Here Wednesday

The people of the United States and all the United Nations must be awakened to the fact that they are involved in a struggle of populations rather than a mere conflict between armed forces, in the opinion of United Press European Manager Virgil Pinkley, who will speak at the Loveland Community House, Wednesday evening, Dec. 2.

The young news service executive said that fact was impressed upon him during a ten months' "round-the-world" news-gathering assignment from which he recently returned home.

"In the course of my travels," Pinkley said, "I talked to scores of outstanding allied leaders. Most of them admitted frankly that their people in the main have not yet grasped the meaning of total war, as it is executed by the dictators."

"People who for generations have enjoyed democratic government," Pinkley said, "find it most difficult to conceive of the complete regimentation which total war demands."

Pinkley is personally familiar with what the axis system of regimentation entails. He travelled extensively in Italy and Germany before the United States entered the war, and has visited most of the fighting fronts on news assignments.

In spite of everything that has been said and written about axis ambitions, many of the peoples of the United Nations still are unable to comprehend the enormity of the program of our enemies and the vastness of the task confronting us if the democratic way of life is to be preserved."

The United Press executive—a world traveler, war correspondent and an accomplished lecturer—will tell his Dixon audience of his observations in the axis nations, before we entered the war, and of the impressions he gathered, on his recent earth-girdling trip.

Pinkley's keen analysis of war developments is based on 13 years of trained observation and objective reporting of news for the United Press on four continents. It is based also on recent interviews and talks with such key figures in the world struggle as General Sir Claude Auchinleck, commander of British forces in the Middle East; Mahatma Gandhi; the Shah of Persia; the Viceroy of India; Prime Minister General Jan Christian Smuts of the Union of South Africa; The Archbishop of Canterbury; Dr. Benes, president of Czechoslovakia; Premier General Sikorsky of Poland; British Minister of Production Lyttleton and Minister of Labor Bevin; Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and many others.

Said Pinkley: "It is the opinion of most allied leaders to whom I have talked that Russia of all the United Nations has best geared its civil population to total war. China, in many respects, has done the next best job. Britain and the United States still are a long way from the goal."

Pinkley contrasted the attitude of citizens in the democracies with that of civilians in Germany, Japan and to a lesser extent, Italy.

"The German people, nazis and non-party members alike," he said "have staked everything on winning the war. I recall that one of them told me in a typical conversation months ago:

"It is not a question of whether or not we favor nazi methods. The fact is that Germany is at war. And being at war, we must win. Every German knows that he is fighting to preserve the Fatherland and that the Germans will be destroyed if we win. Every German from 6 to 72 is bending every effort to that end."

Pinkley said that the Americans and civilians of other United Nations must recognize that they and their ways of life are just as surely at stake—that they will be destroyed if we lose, just as certainly as Germany will be destroyed if she loses."

In addition to having an unusually comprehensive understanding of the vital issues involved in the war and a first hand knowledge of the way it is being fought, Pinkley knows intimately many of the military and political leaders whose names now figure in the headlines. He knows the personal traits that have contributed to their leadership, such as the great vitality of the 72-year-old Prime Minister of South Africa. Of him Pinkley said:

"I visited Prime Minister Smuts one day and was amazed by what he termed his 'Sunday diversion.' He started the day of by climbing Table Mountain back of Capetown—a feat which involved a hike of some 30 miles, and then topped it off with a 'little dip in the ocean'—a swim of two miles." In spite of almost 40 years difference in our ages, I should hate to try to keep pace with him."

Pinkley's wide acquaintance with world figures and his many adventures under fire on the battle fronts and in the diplomatic centers of Europe give his lectures color and interest, while his observations on war trends are of significance and importance to every American.

Army Reveals Why Flying Fortress Rules Nazi Skies

Invulnerability of Big American Planes Is Demonstrated

London, Nov. 30—(AP)—The United States army has told the story of an heroic air fight which enabled American Flying Fortresses to establish their amazing record of invulnerability to German fighters in the Lille raid last Oct. 9. The story was a sequel to the recent decoration of 11 men from two crews of the B-17 bombers.

One Fortress, piloted by Capt. James J. Griffith, Jr., of High Point, N. C., was hit by three bursts of anti-aircraft fire which tore away two square yards of fabric from the right wing flap, smashed a 12 inch hole in the fuselage, and knocked two gunners off their feet. The gunners, Lieut. Col. Stuart M. Porter of Muskogee, Okla., acting as observer gunner, and Corp. J. G. Cottros of Charlotte, N. C., were both injured.

Both jumped up, however, and opened fire on a formation of 20 Focke-Wulf 190's diving in as close as 15 feet with guns blazing.

He Still Fights Back

Shells from 20 millimeter cannon ripped through the bomber, wounding Gunner L. E. Dennis, a former Farmington, Ill., salesman, in three places in his right thigh, cutting his oxygen and telephone lines, and knocking out one of his guns.

Dennis still fought back with the other gun.

Gunner-Radioman Corp. F. E. Hurn of Syracuse, N. Y., was put out of action with bullets in his abdomen.

In the top turret Sergt. P. R. Taylor of Randolph, Minn., blazed away into the propeller of one P-W 190 which had closed within 10 yards. Taylor didn't realize that he had a wound which later required several stitches.

A German missile smashed a four inch hole in the fuselage beside Corp. S. E. Blanchard of Milwaukee, Wis. It broke his oxygen line, but he shot down a fighter in flames, for which he was awarded a medal.

A Few Things Go Wrong

"A pair of six inch holes appeared in the wings, hits were scored on the tail assembly, shrapnel fragments riddled six out of ten parachutes, one engine was shot out, and its propeller refused to function," the army related.

"The remaining three engines were opened up past the safety point to hold the bomber in formation."

"The tail was so damaged that the pilot and co-pilot had to prop their knees against the wheel to keep the plane's nose up. The pull was so terrific they could see the wheel bend. But they brought the fort back with her buckled right wing and her five wounded—brought her back to a safe landing and eventually for citations for seven of her gallant crew."

An accompanying Fortress was surrounded by such a barrage of anti-aircraft fire "it looked like acres and acres of cotton," the pilot, Maj. Robert B. Heck of Allentown, Pa., said.

Burst of Flame

One great, sudden jolt and flames like the tail of a comet streamed from a gaping hole behind the number two engine, fire spurting from shattered fuel lines and threatening to explode the wing tanks.

The pilot's oxygen system was shot away so suddenly he almost fainted from lack of air before he realized what was wrong.

Flames swirled through gun apertures. Sgt. Archie Cothren of Dierks, Ark., was wounded in the jaw and his oxygen mask was torn away. He bailed out.

The German fighters thought that indicated that the ship was finished and closed in. But in the next few minutes the Fortress gunners had shot down three of them.
